

The Founder

Originated by Master Bu Gil Kim, Electrical Engineer and Doctor of Oriental Medicine, WullStone Far InfraRed Energy therapy is the innovative fusion of traditional Asian medicinal arts and modern technology.

Now a vigorously serene gentleman in his 60's, more than two decades ago Master Kim was a fervent 'type A' personality and at the top of his career as an electrical engineer manufacturing components for Radio Shack in the US and generating multi-millions in annual sales. But the demands of success took their toll during a workday family lunch in the form of a stroke at the premature age of 38.

Bitterly disappointed with the treatment results prescribed by his orthodox physicians, Master Kim was guided to embrace health through the holistic approach embodied within 'Ahn Ma Do In Seul', and during three months of rigorous self-treatment using the traditional application of heat and massage to Chi points and energy meridians of the body, he healed himself.

Today there's no trace of trauma on that smiling face: a living testimony to his personal courage and the transformational power of Wull Principles. As many do after such a life-changing experience, there's a strong desire to share the knowledge learned, and so Bu Gil Kim subsequently trained and earned the honors of a Doctor of Oriental Medicine in Acupuncture and Moxibustion. Then uniting ancient knowledge with contemporary science Master Kim translated his people's traditional healing wisdom into modern electronic technology to create WullStone FIRE Therapy – an innovative synergy of heat therapy, chi therapy and stone therapy.

Renowned in Asia as the illustrious 'Rock Doctor', Master Kim's mission has been ever since, "To be the catalyst for physical and emotional balance, to empower the individual to achieve optimum potential for good mind body health, and to encourage personal development in the pursuit of total wellness." Master Bu Gil Kim.