

A UNIQUE SYNERGY

The WullStone FIRE Custom Massage System provides a unique therapeutic synergy combining the biostimulating benefits of far infrared energy with heat therapy, chi therapy, and stone therapy.

Heat Therapy:

Heat therapy causes vasodilatation and an increase of circulation in an attempt to dissipate the heat. Local application of heat causes erythema (reddening) of the skin due to vasodilatation, increased metabolism, and leukocyte migration to the area, relaxation of local musculature, and a slight analgesia.

But What Makes the Warming Effects of Far InfraRed Energy Very Different From That of a Hot Water Bottle or Rock?

Unlike the transient radiance of a hot water bottle, or a rock heated in hot water, the long-lasting warmth experienced with WullStone FIRE therapy comes from the deeply penetrative vibrational energy of infrared waves resonating within the cells of the body. Of all the energy we receive from the sun, Far InfraRed Energy at between 5 and 14 microns is considered to be the safest and most beneficial to humans. WullStone delivers Far InfraRed Energy at between 4 and 14 microns, (4000 and 14000 nanometers), causing the molecules within our cells to resonate harmoniously, raising their energy levels and stimulating the body's natural healing processes through the following physiological changes:

Chi Therapy:

Traditionally the art and science of acupuncture has been used throughout centuries to access chi points and pathways for the management of mind body energy. The creative force in Nature that generates the dynamic polarity between Yin and Yang manifests itself in the flow of vital energy or life force from one to the other as Chi (or Qi).

Every life process within Nature is an expression of vital energy or Chi. It is the source of all movement, generation of warmth, psychic activity and vitality, body functions, and protective mechanisms. It is vital therefore, for optimum health and well being, that the natural flow of Chi energy within intrinsic pathways (also referred to as channels, and meridians), should be unhampered.

Chi can become blocked and stagnant and therefore can bring about conditions of excess and/or deficiency within the mind body. It is possible to influence the state of the energy flow within the pathways, and therefore to exert a direct therapeutic effect on body functions, by accessing specific Chi energy points.

The WullStone FIRE therapy system stimulates these Chi points and pathways softly and non-invasively through the skin without the use of needles to achieve therapeutic benefits.

Stone Therapy:

Stones have been used as wonderful tools in a wide range of therapeutic modalities for centuries by virtue of their unique properties of texture and temperature. In addition to their weight and smoothness, heated and cooled stones offer a series of predictable reactions that are the result of the body accommodating itself to the new temperature environment.

However, unless the stones chosen as bodywork tools are composed of minerals of the sort that emit far infrared wavelengths, then their benefits are limited to surface hyperthermic and hypothermic responses, and will not include the deeply penetrative resonant absorption effects brought about by far infrared radiants.

Remember, WullStone FIRE therapy perfectly enhances standard massage using river or precious rocks. Both recipient and practitioner will enjoy a unique experience in the synergy between the smooth sensation of deeply penetrative, stable far infrared warmth with the various shapes, textures, temperatures, and subtle benefits provided by rocks and precious stones.